MacArthur-Truman Policy Dispute Boils Again

General May Be Asked to Clear Releases With Administration

Washington, March 26—(P)—The dispute that boils between General Douglas MacArthur and the Truman administration over how to win the Korean war has reached fever heat again. The administration may shortly ask the general to clear with Washington anything he says involving broad foreign policy issues.

This may or may not prove acceptable to MacArthur, but state department officials as well as some others with great influence at the White House privately say something must be done to prevent a repetition of last week's exchange of shocks and harsh words between Tokyo and Washington.

President Truman circulated last December a firm, government-wide directive declaring that any statement on foreign policy by any official or employee of the government in a speech, article or other public utterance, should be cleared with the state department. Informants said today that order was called to MacArthur's attention at the time.

Friday night, Washington time, MacArthur left Tokyo for the 38th parallel area of Korea to order United Nations forces to cross into North Korea as tactical requirements made necessary. Before leaving Tokyo he issued a statement to the press.

In this statement he made a bid for peace talks with his opposite number on the Communist side, said the Chinese Reds were licked and incapable of waging modern war and warned that if the United Nations launched attacks on Chinese bases and coastal area the Red nation would probably suffer a military collapse.

This statement, a check showed, caught the state department completely unawares. It apparently also caught President Truman without advance notice. After several hours of parleying, including a talk between Secretary of State Acheson and Mr. Truman, a rather meaningless statement was issued, designed to say on Saturday that Washington had nothing to do with what MacArthur declared Friday night.

The statement said MacArthur had authority to conduct military operations but the political issues which "he has stated are beyond his responsibilities" are being dealt with in the U. N. and by the governments having troops in Korea.

The key MacArthur clause which set off the alarm here was that the United Nations could probably succeed in forcing a military collapse of Red China by a limited coastal-attack and base-bombing war. A Tokyo dispatch yesterday suggested MacArthur probably was trying to divert the Chinese Reds' attention from Korea to the danger of a coastal attack.

Whatever his objective, any statement he makes—even hedged in with "ifs"—about extending the war in the Far East always sends huge shudders among the Canadian, French, British and other friendly governments. When the Europeans came in to the state department wanting to know "what does MacArthur propose to do," Acheson and his aides get upstaged about the problems of holding together the political side of the coalition of which MacArthur is military commander.

The basic difference between Washington and MacArthur, however, goes back a long time. It involves the relative importance of the Far East and Europe and MacArthur's constant emphasis on the former. It involves how to deal with the peoples of the Far East and what forces will eventually win there.

Senate May Reach Vote This Week on Colored Oleo Bills

Harrisburg, March 26—(P)—The fight for removal of the ban against the sale of colored oleomargarine in Pennsylvania may come to a head in the senate this week.

Sen. George B. Scarlett (R-Chester), chairman of the senate agriculture committee, said he wants to get the oleo issue "thrashed out as soon as possible."

"If I can get the committee together this week, we will certainly give the oleo bills top attention," Scarlett told a reporter.

At least 10 bills to revise the oleo laws to permit sale of yellow oleomargarine are now pending before senate and house agriculture committees. All bills must win committee approval before they can go to the floor for a vote.

In the house, Rep. Albert E. Madigan (R-Bradford), chairman of the house agriculture committee, said he has no plans at present to bring the bills before his group.

He said he wants to give the lawmakers more time to consider the issues involved before the question of lifting oleo sale restrictions is considered in committee.

Lawmakers report they are receiving an unprecedented number of letters and cards, seeking both (From Page Eight)

Police Questioning Four Juveniles on Number of Thefts

Disclosure of a series of thefts by four juveniles was made by Chief of Police Mike Evan today with the case being broken by Officers William Hewitt and Bernard Winegardner Friday evening as the result of the detention of a young man for prowling on the east side.

After being picked up and questioned by the officers, the youngster started to talk and implicated the others in a series of thefts which have been under investigation by police for several days. The boys are being questioned further today by Chief Evan.

The lads have admitted breaking into the Hoagvall Hardware over the weekend of March 17 and taking a sum of money from the cash register. The theft was discovered Monday, March 19, by the owner when the register was checked. Although there was about $60 in the register, there was only $6.54 missing.

Entry to the hardware was made by use of ladders to get into a second story window above the alley at the rear of the building.

In addition to the entry at Hoagvall's, Chief Evan said the lads have admitted several other thefts.

Among them are the theft of flashlights, gloves, 22 shells, hunting knife, batteries and a flood light from automobiles parked in (Turn to Page Eight)

Corry Man Injured In Overhead Crash

Ralph Hamilton, of Corry, sustained lacerations of the lip and face about 7:30 p. m. yesterday when a Dodge truck, which he was driving, struck the railing of the Scott overhead crossing near Irvine. State police said that Hamilton told them he swerved to miss an oncoming car and struck the railing, from where his vehicle skidded and crashed into the railing on the opposite side.

Hamilton was not hospitalized. Damage to his truck was estimated at $500.

Saturday afternoon, state police were called to Sugar Grove to investigate a collision between cars operated by Dorothy Briggs, of Erie, and Arthur Berg, of Johnstown. Damage to each vehicle was estimated at $100 and there were no injuries.

Officers said the collision occurred when the Erie car attempted a left turn off Route 69 and was struck in the rear by the Johnstown car. Both were driving south at the time.

Prayers for End of World Strife Mark Easter Sunday

By The Associated Press
Continuing international tensions heightened the fervency of peace-hungry Easter celebrants throughout the Christian world yesterday (Sunday).

Even in eastern Europe, where orthodox Christianity no longer is favored as a way of life, Easter services were jammed.

In the face of a bleak world prospect, the celebration of the resurrection of the Prince of Peace had added significance, and prayers for the end of strife took on new meaning.

Thousands of pilgrims flocked to the site of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem. They found in the Holy Land a twentieth century symbol of the crown of thorns—barbed wire entanglements remaining from the 1948 Arab-Jewish fighting.

Pilgrims to Rome heard Pope Pius XII make a fervent appeal for brotherly accord to free the world of lust and violence so that all might live and work in peace.

Chaplains with United Nations forces in Korea held services at crude outdoor altars to bring their embattled congregations Christ's message of hope.

An urgent wish for a peaceful, ordered world was the dominant theme of observance everywhere.

In Communist-governed Czechoslovakia, in Soviet-occupied east Germany and in Moscow itself, Easter services were jammed. In the Philippines, soldiers with fixed bayonets guarded the faithful from possible raids by the Red-inspired Hukbalahaps.

There were cheerful aspects, however. New York and Paris staged the customary Easter fashion shows. Sudden showers fell in Israel, breaking the worst drought in 80 years.

A new note of reconciliation between Arabs and Jews in the Holy Land was appropriate to the day. An incident of the sort that has led to bitter dispute and even armed clashes was settled quickly and amicably. The Israeli government agreed to return 140 sheep that had strayed across the border from Jordan territory. The Jordanians agreed to pay for damage caused by the sheep, as well as the expense of feeding and guarding them.

Frigid wintry blasts, ice and snow storms hold no terrors for two men who are driving from Scranton to Chicago, in a 1914 Stutz Bearcat open sport car to officially open the world's largest hobby show.

A. J. "Tony" Koveleski, Scranton, manufacturer of miniature old time autos, (shown left, back of the wheel in above picture), and Al Rung, (right in the seat reserved these days for the driver in a modern car), hobby magazine editor of Harrisburg, who left Scranton at noon Saturday, "blew" into Warren about three o'clock Sunday afternoon, and after a quick lunch, continued on their way aiming to make Conneaut, O., last night. They left Scranton at noon Saturday, and expect to drive the prize-winning sport car, best preserved of its kind in the world, into Chicago by Wednesday afternoon.

Koveleski and Rung, followed by a mechanic in a separate auto, will be welcomed to Chicago by Dave Garroway, radio and TV star. The group will then officially open the World Hobby Exposition which is being held at the Chicago Coliseum from March 30 to April 8.

The bright yellow and chrome Stutz Bearcat owned by Koveleski is one of five such remaining autos in existence today, and was a grand prize winner at the 1949 Glidden Cross Country Tour, and the 1950 International Grand Prix Concours d'Elegance at Watkins Glen, N. Y. The four cylinder, forty horsepower Bearcat weighs forty-two hundred pounds, has two bucket seats, but no windshield, top, or doors. Rung and Koveleski are bundled against the elements with early 1900 style raccoon skin overcoats, flying helmets, and goggles. Bucking forty mile an hour headwinds and snow flurries, the pair drove one hundred and twenty miles from Scranton to Wellsboro, Penna., on the first day of their journey. Future stops are planned at Conneaut and Cleveland, Ohio, Nappanee, Indiana, and Chicago.

The Stutz delivers an average of sixteen miles to a gallon of gasoline, has a top speed of eighty five miles per hour, normally cruises at fifty.

First aid classes in Warren County as part of the Civilian Defense program will start tomorrow evening, according to Dr. A. F. Yerg, chief of the medical division of the county defense council.

The division, working in cooperation with the Red Cross, will hold classes in Sheffield, at the Warren YMCA and YWCA, and possibly in North Warren. It is also learned that the Sylvania Company, Pennsylvania Furnace and Iron Co., and New Process Company will sponsor classes among their employees.

The aim of the medical division is to complete five or six classes of Standard and Advanced First Aid training before June. Recently 1000 record cards, for joint use of the American Red Cross and Civilian Defense, were delivered to the Red Cross Headquarters.

Washington, March 26—(P)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover today urged the senate crime committee to continue its exposure of organized crime which "has polluted all too many communities of our nation."

He called also for local communities to take the lead in ruthlessly eliminating criminal elements and their ally, "the political renegade." Every community, Hoover suggested, should have a yearly grand jury investigation to scrutinize the administration of justice. Hoover and Attorney General McGrath were before the senate committee to discuss what new laws may be needed to combat crime. McGrath urged that congress tighten the laws against perjury—false testimony under oath—and give him authority to grant immunity to a witness who declines to testify lest he incriminate himself.

He recommended, too, legislation aimed to deny use of communications facilities for gambling information. But he emphasized that any such law should take into account the importance of maintaining the freedom of the press.

Even as the law enforcement officers were testifying, a New York grand jury returned two indictments on perjury charges growing out of the committee's hearings there.

Those indicted were James J. Moran, resigned New York City water commissioner, and Louis Weber, acknowledged Brooklyn numbers bookmaker. They were accused of lying in testimony about their associations with each other.

McGrath, with some show of heat, told the senators there was no way the federal government could deport Frankie Costello, New York racketeer, who is a native of Italy but was naturalized in (Turn to Page Eight)

The entire UN line drew closer to Parallel 38. It appeared the Allies could cross in force whenever they chose.

On the central front an American division was reported within two miles of North Korea. On the east coast South Korean patrols punctured the imaginary line like a sieve, crossing and recrossing at will.

Far East naval headquarters said South Korean troops staged a Commando raid 50 miles north of the parallel Saturday. They landed on the Wolsa Peninsula and killed 100 Reds while capturing 60. Then they withdrew.

The peninsula is south of the Taedong estuary which leads to Chinnampo, port city for the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

From the western front AP correspondent Jim Becker quoted U. S. officers as saying the link-up "saved us four or five days of tough fighting."

The officers said the Chinese 26th Army Corps, rushed into defensive positions north of Seoul only last week, had withdrawn.

Until the link-up, the Reds fought a stubborn delaying action along the road leading north from Uijongbu.

Heavy troop concentrations were reported just north of the 38th parallel. Parts of six Chinese and North Korean armies were spread between and around the North Korean towns of Yonchon and Hwachon.

Easter Accidents Claim Eight Lives

By The Associated Press
Eight persons lost their lives in accidents in Pennsylvania over an Easter weekend which was one of the safest holiday interludes in years.

Five were killed in traffic accidents, two by fire. A three-year-old boy drowned in an abandoned well.

A head-on collision on Route 755, three miles south of St. Marys, killed Milo P. Spangler, 29, of Daguer Mines, and injured Eugene E. Gruber, 46, of Strattonville, and his 15-year-old daughter, Elizabeth.

Howard Joseph Sutter Hall, 73, a great grandson of General John A. Sutter of California gold rush fame, was struck by an automobile in Lancaster, and died two hours later in a hospital.

William T. Bennett, 80, also died of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car. He was hit at a street intersection in Strongs-town, Indiana county, and died in Johnstown Memorial Hospital.

The other traffic accident victims were William Bellinger, 56, Pittsburgh, and Robert Fegley, 17, who lived near Reading.

A man and his wife were fatally burned in a fire which destroyed their one-story rural home near Chambersburg. The body of R. Edgar Shearer, 28, was found by firemen in the bedroom. Shearer's wife, Virginia, the same age, escaped from the blazing house but died later of burns.

The body of Gerald Gould, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gould, of Spring Mount, near Norristown, was found in a disused well by an assistant scoutmaster and close family friend.

Military Aid For Latin America Is Studied by Group

Washington, March 26—(P)—The Truman administration is urgently considering an unprecedented $50,000,000 military aid program for Latin America. This was learned today in advance of the opening here of an inter-American foreign ministers conference.

The first session of the conference gets underway at about 3:30 p. m., EST, with an address by President Truman. The American chief executive was expected to make an appeal for tight unity of western hemisphere nations against the worldwide Soviet Communist threat.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson, American member of the conference, has as his chief objective in the meeting an agreement that the central and South American Nations will build up their military strength so that they can carry a greater share of the load of hemisphere defense, now borne chiefly by the U. S.

Latin American governments in pre-conference exchanges have made clear that if they are to increase their military establishments they will require American help. This has confronted the state and defense departments with the question of how help may be provided.

Informed officials said today recent discussions have resulted in a tentative agreement to seek final White House approval for an arms aid program—somewhat similar to but far smaller than that for western Europe—of about $50,000,000. The European program runs into many billions.

This recommendation, assuming White House approval, would go to congress in a catch-all $11,000,000,000 foreign aid bill which Mr. Truman is expected to place before the nation's lawmakers late next month. Congress would make the final decision.

O'Day Case Slated On Court Calendar

O'Day, charged with larceny of a motor vehicle and violation of parole, may be able to appear in Quarter Sessions court when it convenes for the March term Friday morning. O'Day is convalescing at Warren General Hospital from a hernia operation, performed some days ago.

Other items on the court calendar include divorce court Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, with 10 cases listed for hearing tomorrow and nine on Wednesday.

The March term of argument court will convene on Thursday. Judge Allison D. Wade will preside at all sessions.

Assemblymen Ready to Tackle Gov. Fine's Huge Tax Program

Harrisburg, March 26—(P)—Members of the legislature returned today to tackle Gov. Fine's proposed $163,500,000 tax program after sounding out sentiment over the Easter holiday.

The governor's new tax package, topped by a one-half of one percent flat income tax, probably will be introduced in the house late in the afternoon.

Introduction of the tax bills is expected to provoke attacks by Democrats in both houses.

Sen. John H. Dent, Democratic floor leader, already has termed the income tax proposal as "obnoxious to the lower income workman and his family."

Fine has asked for levy of the flat income tax as well as a one per cent increase in the present four per cent corporate net income tax to help balance his $1,220,000,000 state budget for the next two years.

He estimated the income tax would produce about $119,500,000 during the next two years, and the corporate tax increase about $44,000,000.

The governor also has recommended that all existing taxes be continued with the exception of the cent-a-bottle soft drinks tax.

A tough battle is in prospect meanwhile before the tax bills become law. Dent already has said the 20 Democratic votes in the senate are solidly against the income tax proposal.

Three Republican senators also have come out against the income tax levy. They are Sens. G. Graybill Diehm (Lancaster), John G. Snowden (Lycoming), and C. Arthur Blass (Erie).

There was also a report that southeastern county legislators may use the income tax proposal to force Fine to help free non-resident workers from payment of Philadelphia's one and one-quarter per cent wage tax.

Counties surrounding Philadelphia have been trying unsuccessfully for years to win exemption of their residents who work in the Quaker city. Lawmakers from these counties were described as ready to hold off support of Fine's

State AFL Expected To Oppose New Tax

York, March 26—(P)—Top leaders of the state AFL are expected to go on record today against Gov. Fine's proposed state income tax. The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor's executive council called a closed meeting late in the afternoon to consider Fine's proposals for raising $163,000,000 in new taxes during the next two years. James L. McDevitt, state AFL president, said the council's recommendations concerning the governor's tax plans would be presented before the AFL's 49th annual convention opening here tomorrow.

income tax plan, unless he agrees to help push through legislation removing non-residents from Philadelphia's wage tax provisions. Such a move would cause Philadelphia to lose some $10,000,000 in revenue from its wage tax.

But despite the gathering opposition to the income tax proposal, Fine's two top leaders in the legislature have predicted it will successfully clear the general assembly.

Annual Egg Hunt Success Despite Cold Weather

SCRAMBLE GETS UNDER WAY—The cameraman had to work fast when the starting gun signalled the takeoff for Saturday's annual American Legion Easter Egg Hunt in Crescent Park. This shot shows only a small section of the hundreds of youngsters who turned out, undaunted by the weather man's lack of cooperation for the event. (Phil Coyle Photo.)

The annual Easter Egg hunt, sponsored by Chief Cornplanter Post American Legion at Crescent Park Saturday afternoon attracted the usual huge crowd of adults and children, and everything went according to schedule excepting the most important factor—some person jumped the gun, and the grand scramble for the hidden treasure started about five minutes before two o'clock. Some late comers arriving shortly before the starting horn discovered the hunt was all over and despite careful search no eggs could be found.

The air was cold and there was a stinging wind, but that did not discourage hundreds of youngsters from gathering along Crescent Park, some of them as early as 1:15 o'clock. A large committee of members of the post augmented by several police officers were doing a pretty good job of restraining the youngsters until about 1:55 o'clock, when for some unknown reason, the mad dash got under way. However, considering the weather, most everyone seemed to be well satisfied to get it over with and return to warm surroundings.

The committee in charge takes this means of expressing appreciation to the following for cooperation received in making the affair a success: Warren City Lines, Inc., Lewis Market, Chief of Police Mike Evan and members of the police department, Gilbert Reier and the Park Department, WNAE and the Warren Times-Mirror.

The following merchants contributed prizes for the American Legion Easter Egg Hunt:

sembly was in session and this hall was not available for the Congress, which met in Carpenter's Hall, at Fourth and Chestnut streets, which had been completed in 1771 by the Carpenter's Company of the City and County of Philadelphia. In those days the Pennsylvania Capitol was generally called "the State House." On September 16, 1774, George Washington wrote in his diary that he had "Dined at the State House at an Entertainment given by the City to the Members of Congress." The Second Continental Congress met in the State House and there Washington was chosen Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army in 1775 and the Declaration of Independence was adopted and signed in 1776. Later the Articles of Confederation and the Federal Constitution were drafted and signed in the same room. After the British evacuated Philadelphia in 1778, it took a month to make the State House a fit place for their sessions again. On July 15 of that year, President Henry Laurent of Congress wrote:

Various impediments prevented earlier assembling. One was the offensiveness of the air in and around the State House, which the Enemy had made an Hospital and left it in a condition disgraceful to the Character of civility. Particularly they had opened a large square pit near the House, a receptacle for filth, into which they had also cast dead horses and the bodies of men who by the mercy of death had escaped from their further cruelties. I cannot proceed to a new subject before I add a curse on their savage practice.

It was not until many years afterward that the old State House became known as Independence Hall and the room in which Congress and the Constitutional Convention had sat became known as the "Declaration Chamber." The State Capitol was moved to Lancaster in 1790 and to Harrisburg in 1812, and the old State House was purchased by the City of Philadelphia for $70,000. From 1802 to 1825 a large part of Independence Hall was rented to Charles Willson Peale, naturalist and portrait painter, for use as a museum. In 1943 President Roosevelt, acting under authority of an act of Congress, declared the group of historic buildings in Independence Square a national memorial and shrine to be maintained jointly by the National Parks Service and Philadelphia. Suggestions For Collecting Old-Age And Survivor Funds

Are you failing to collect old-age and survivors insurance benefits you are eligible for under the new Social Security Act?

Chester R. Norman, manager of the Jamestown social security office warned today that people made eligible for benefits on last September 1 by the new social security law must claim them by March 31 if they are to get the full amount payable.

The new law makes it possible to honor many claims that had to be disallowed before. However, those affected must file new claims at his office before any payments can be made.

"Back benefits can be paid for only the six months before the month of application," Mr. Norman explained, "and people who were made eligible in September but who haven't been in touch with us since then should inquire promptly at our office or by mail."

He listed the following classes as those most likely to be affected:

1. People 65 and over who have worked as much as a year and a half on social security-covered jobs. These can get benefits if their earnings under social security do not exceed $80 monthly.
2. People 75 and over who have worked as much as a year and a half on covered jobs. These can get benefits though still regularly employed.
- Children under 18 of deceased Veterans of World War II. The mothers or others having charge of such children should apply.
4. Children under 18 of a deceased mother who had worked under social security. Whoever is in charge of the children should apply.

The local office is located at 312 Jamestown Hotel Bldg., and the staff there will give all necessary information and assistance in connection with claiming benefits.

For the benefit of those who cannot come to Jamestown, part time service is maintained in Warren at the U. S. Post Office building, in a basement office, the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, from one to three p. m.

After Shakespeare Memorial Theater at Stratford-on-Avon burned in 1926, America contributed more than half of a million-dollar fund for its rebuilding.

THE TROOPS-TO-EUROPE DEBATE

A sizable number of quite vocal senators believes that Congress should have a great deal to say about where we send troops, how many we send, and when.

Some of these lawmakers want to put definite limits not only on the size of any overseas forces but on the total of the entire army. They want to say how troops should be disposed on foreign soil, and to specify what conditions other nations must meet before we dispatch our soldiers.

It has been well recognized that the substance of these choices is essentially military. In proposing that Congress shall make these decisions, the legislators in question are in fact urging that they be constituted as a sort of supra-military authority.

No sensible man would argue that our military leaders should be above criticism or free of the normal checks that all public officials must endure. We know from mountainous evidence that they're often wrong, usually wasteful of men and materiel, and frequently high-handed in dealing with critics.

But, as Bruce Blossat, NEA Service editorial writer says, for better or for worse, they are the only military experts we have. They make a lifetime study of military problems. Their whole waking existence is devoted to devising ways and means of protecting this nation against any possible enemy.

Moreover, by the nature of their organization they are equipped to put into almost instant effect the plans they have so carefully conceived for our safety.

Does anyone seriously believe that we should transfer any significant share of this responsibility to Congress, or that Congress is qualified to bear it?

If anyone thinks so, let him examine the record of the Senate on the troops-for-Europe question still pending there. It has been three months since Senator Wherry, Republican Senate leader, first offered his resolution suggesting that Congress' approval ought to be had for any troop movements to Europe.

Nearly two months have passed since the Senate Foreign Relations Committee opened hearings on the issue. And with debate at full tilt on the Senate floor, what happened? Some of the men most insistent upon Congress having a voice in this vital matter decided that the more important thing at the moment was their Easter vacation.

So they trekked off home, shrugging off the question with an "it can wait" attitude. Meanwhile General Eisenhower, commander of the European defense army, cools his heels.

With painstaking care and delicacy, Eisenhower has engineered a rebirth of hope and confidence among the Europeans who must certainly furnish the largest proportion of any defense force based on the continent. It is that force the free world counts upon to hold off the insistent Russian flood.

But Eisenhower knows, as we all do now, that the biggest lift to European confidence, the best underscoring of our intent that we could offer, would be the early dispatch of more American ground troops to Europe. It isn't the number that matters so much. It's the speed with which they're sent.

This general situation was widely understood long before the troops-for-Europe debate began. Yet senators still see no urgency in the issue, still feel free to knock off for a pleasant Easter holiday, still devote themselves to endless haggling over the words of a resolution when the need is for clear, unmistakable action.

TRADITIONAL EASTER

Christians of the old and the new world Sunday celebrated the Easter miracle of the Risen Christ in sunrise services, pontifical masses, pilgrimages to Holy places, and the usual joyous church gatherings.

According to dispatches a record number of pilgrims attended services and visited shrines in the drought-parched Holy Land. In a world beset with anxiety, prayers for peace dominated the 1951 observance.

In Warren, in spite of low temperature and bitterly cold atmosphere, all churches were well attended and dispatches say churches, both Protestant and Catholic were crowded throughout the United States.

Francis Cardinal Spellman sent an Easter message to the people behind the iron curtain saying that Americans would pray that the celebration of Christ's resurrection would be "prophetic of your own delivery from persecution and enslavement."

The Red Herring

Here And There

A hideous golden figure of the Aztec Goddess of Earth winds through a story of intrigue, robbery and death in a new suspense-filled sequence in the detective-adventure comic "Vic Flint," appearing daily in the Times-Mirror. It all starts when Joe Faro, a badly frightened stranger, enters Vic's office and asks for help in finding a man named Zord. He explains his fear by saying he has something someone else wants. When Flint demands more information, Faro makes an appointment for the evening, tosses $400 on Vic's desk and disappears down a hall. Faro fails to keep the appointment. The next time Flint sees him, he is dead in an abandoned house. Meanwhile,

Flint meets beautiful and mysterious Sherry Flipp, has his office ransacked, receives through the mail a key to a coin-in-the-slot locker, and in the locker finds a six-inch golden figure of the Aztec idol, Cuatloue (Kwah-lee-quay). The case of the Aztec Idol starting tomorrow involves Detective Vic Flint in an adventure jam-packed with excitement. His search for the elusive Zord, discovery of the slayer of Joe Faro, and revelation of the lively history of the Aztec Idol makes this one of Flint's best stories.

Four times as many deaths from traffic accidents per car on the road occur at night as during the day.

Gone Are Liberty's Champs
In Wags' Songs About D. C.

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Washington now has an official song, selected as a result of a contest.

The winning song begins:
Washington—the land of memories of the great men of the past;
Jefferson and Patrick Henry, who for Liberty stood fast.
A group of government wags at lunch started dreaming up some additional stanzas of their own, however, and came up with:
Hail Columbia, District of! Shiny seat of U. S. gov.
Along our parks Potomac shines with sewage, oil and melon rinds.
The cost of living here is tops! Your pants will shine until it drops.
You shovel taxes in a trough, while five per centers grab them off.
Hail our beautiful Pentagon! Hail both Vaughan and Maragon!
Oh! Can you RFC? Deep freeze and mink coat here are free!

Current gag around Washington is: "Things were better when Truman was President."

THOUGH union labor leaders have tried to make something out of the fact that Defense Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson had no top labor policy official on his staff, it is noteworthy that President Truman doesn't have a union man on the White House staff, either. Dr. John R. Steelman, the assistant to the President, has handled most labor matters for the White House. Young David H. Stowe, an administrative assistant to the President, has also done some work on manpower and labor problems. But when "Doc" Steelman was tied up on recent railroad wage negotiations and Stowe was in England studying civil defense problems, it was the President's counsel, Charles G. Murphy, who stepped in to handle the walkout of union officials from the defense organization.

Crisis in the toy railroad—or more properly the model railroad—industry has been temporarily averted. When the copper shortage hit, model railroad builders thought they'd have to go out of business. Then suppliers got to experimenting with substitutes and found that rust-resisting steel gave a stronger and perhaps a better track than copper and brass. So the conversion may be permanent, if the supply of alloy steels holds out. There's still a shortage of white metal for die casting, however, and supply of new locomotives and cars may be much reduced. Hobbyists take all these things pretty seriously.

FRESHMAN Democratic Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island was making a report to the Committee on District of Columbia affairs. Before his election as senator, Pastore had been governor of his state. "After holding hearings on this bill, and after all the discussion about it, I wondered what I came to Washington for," he said. The bill in question was a proposal to make it illegal to yank rockfish weighing over 15 pounds out of that portion of the Potomac River that flows through the District of Columbia.

Air Force Undersecretary John A. McCone has a story about how important everybody in Washington thinks he is. "They're like all the ants caught on a log that's floating down a river." When asked to explain, Mr. McCone says, "Every one of those ants thinks he's steering that log."

The three "DPA's" in the defense setup have now been straightened out. Originally they were Defense Production Administration, Defense Petroleum Administration and Defense Power Administration. The first mentioned DPA has kept its name. The other two have been changed to PAD, Petroleum Administration for Defense and DEPA—Defense Electric Power Administration.

Chapter 6

VAL NELSON and Craig Blanning had stepped back as Neal Smith spoke. Now they were also holding short tubes. From the way they were held and pointed it was obvious they were some sort of dangerous weapon.

Ray Bradley closed one eye and studied the one pointed directly at his head. He could see through it. There seemed nothing inside it except some crosshairs toward the opposite end. Whatever it was, it was something that had not yet been invented in 1950—or even hinted at.

"Nuts!" Joe was saying, disgustedly. "We're not moving until we get ready to. What harm would it do for you to answer my questions?"

"Just give the police time to locate us," Neal said. "Get moving."

His fist tightened around the tube in his hand. Nothing seemed to happen; but suddenly Joe felt his muscles cramping painfully. The sensation passed almost as soon as it began.

"Get going," Neal said tonelessly. "Next time I'll give you half strength instead of quarter—and don't tell me you don't know what this is!"

Joe hesitated briefly, then went to the door, now very meek and subdued. It was not a nice thing to feel your muscles starting to cramp.

It took an hour of crouched-over walking in the round concrete pipe under the streets to reach their next destination. This time they went downward instead of up to street level. It was a sub-basement area of unknown extent.

Ray and Joe were led part way down a corridor that extended much farther, and ushered into a room twelve by fourteen, with a twelve foot ceiling. There were chairs set down in. Other than that the room was bare.

Craig and Val stood over them with drawn weapons while Neal Smith knocked discreetly on a door leading into another room. A male voice on the other side called for him to enter. He put away his tube weapon and opened the door just far enough to slip through.

He was gone fifteen minutes before he returned to order: Joe and Ray brought in. He took out his weapon. The three weapons covered Ray and Joe warily as they went into the next room.

The floor here was covered by a thick rug. There was an all metal desk. Behind the desk sat a man with iron gray hair and the look of an important man about him. He was regarding them worriedly as they came in.

His eyes dropped to two glasses laying on the desk. Ray's and Joe's eyes followed his gaze. The glasses were half full of water. Beside each, on a white paper napkin, was a small capsule, red in color with a bright yellow line around its center.

"I must ask you to take these," he said. "The alternative is the paralysis tube—which is very painful. The end result would be the same because we would give you the capsules when you were in a faint from the pain of the paralysis. All they are is a simple drug that will make you harmless, but not put you to sleep."

"A truth drug?" Ray asked. The man behind the desk nodded his head in the affirmative. "Good," Ray said, picking up the capsule and washing it down quickly. "Maybe you'll listen to us then and stop all this nonsense."

Joe reluctantly followed suit. Minutes later they were sprawled out in armchairs, barely able to hold up their heads.

Sometime later they were aware of a needle being stuck into their arm. Shortly after that they returned to full wakefulness.

"SO YOU really are from the year 1950," the gray haired man said when they had recovered. "It seems incredible. By the way, I'm Arthur Granger. You could call me President of the United States, though that title is meaningless at present, and has been for the past ten years. The Vargians run things."

He held his hand out, first to Ray, then to Joe, and shook warmly. Val Nelson stood in the background, a friendly smile on his face. Neal Smith and Craig Blanning were relaxed in stiff armchair near by. Neal caught Ray's eye.

"We checked on the building where your machine was," he said calmly. "It's like you described to us. You see, we couldn't accept even the story you told under a truth drug. We had to question you until we found something we could check. So after I found that building and its peculiar field, I went down to the library and hunted back through magazines of that period, from 1950 to 1955. There was quite a writeup in one of the big picture magazine weeklies of 1951 showing the same building and the same distortions, optical and gravitational. It made quite a story: two mysterious men rent the place and pay three months' rent in advance, who work in secrecy building something, who vanish, leaving behind a strange thing that is beyond the ability of science to explain. It all checks out."

"What else did it tell?" Joe asked.

Neal shrugged his shoulders. "Nothing much."

"We didn't check any further on your story," Arthur Granger said hastily. "We thought, after we had ascertained you were telling the truth, that it would be more courteous to wait until you were free agents again."

"That's nice of you," Ray said dryly. "Now, if it isn't taking unfair advantage of you, suppose you tell us about this Varg Thrott and the Vargian police, and what that third eye in their foreheads is?"

"I don't blame you for being a trifle sore about the whole thing," Arthur Granger said. "When you learn the whole story you will understand our caution. But suppose we go to the dining hall and relax over some refreshments while we talk."

Hal Boyle's Comment

By ARTHUR EDSON
(For Hal Boyle)

Washington, March 20—(P) — If you want to win friends, and be influenced by people, get yourself an allergy.

You won't be alone, for there are more than 15,000,000 of us allergy sufferers in this country.

It may be hay fever or asthma or a food or skin allergy.

Whatever it is, it's possible that it will be serious and it's certain that it will be annoying.

For the allergy victim often is condemned to a lifetime of wheezing, snorting or scratching.

I'm a scratcher myself.

The little blisters showed up on the index finger of my left hand at the Philadelphia political conventions two years ago.

For a time I thought I might be allergic to Philadelphia, but when I came home the blisters came right with me.

They haven't been a complete liability, for they have helped me to strike up conversations with complete strangers.

I was buying some women's hose, a Valentine for my wife, and the saleslady confessed: "I have an allergy, too. I've had it ever since I switched to hosiery from underwear."

A congressional committee clerk told me a well known senator had a breaking out on his hands for years.

The girl where I bank pointed to some splotches on her hand and asked sympathetically, "Are you allergic to money, too?"

"I'll never know," I said sulkily.

Others have chimed in with all sorts of helpful hints, from taking vitamin pills to coating my hands with vegetable shortening.

Naturally I have followed every piece of advice given me, both amateur and professional, and the results have been gratifying.

The blisters have spread only to four fingers of my left hand and to the little finger of my right. Without this kind of help, I'm sure I would have been a goner.

Certain conclusions have been reached from these interviews, and I pass them on as my small contribution to medical science.

1. The person who has an allergy never suggests a cure.

2. The person who hasn't an allergy always knows exactly what will cure you.

The best cure, of course, is to find the thing, or things, that is irritating, and stay away from it.

My doctor says finding this villain can be extremely difficult and complex.

"I had a woman not long ago who was allergic to her fur coat," he said. "But she insisted she wanted to wear furs, and had me test her for her reaction to each kind of fur."

"She was overjoyed when I finally found the only fur she could wear was mink."

Many prominent people have been hypersensitive, but my favorite is Marcel Proust, the famed French author.

In an introduction to Proust's "remembrance of things past," Lewis Galantieri says of this sufferer from chronic asthma:

"Indoors and out, he would wrap himself up like an anemic voyager in Antarctica, retaining (for example) his furlined coat whole evenings through, while seated in the most brilliant drawing rooms of Paris."

"In bed he wore a long nightgown, sweaters and mufflers, and with these, stockings, gloves and a nightcap."

In later years Proust went out only at night, and used to drop in on his friends at 2 a. m.

So put Proust down as an exception to my rule that an allergy helps win friends. On that schedule, his friends soon must have become allergic to Proust.

The plastic industry's development is traced to the discovery of celluloid by an Albany printer, John Wesley Hyatt, in 1867.

Silver Anniversary Meeting of the Margaret Zundel Missionary Society

The Margaret Zundel Missionary Society of First Lutheran church, observing its silver anniversary with a special program Tuesday evening at eight o'clock in the church, will have the pleasure of hearing an address by Mrs. Grace Thomas, Erie, who is president of the Pittsburgh Synod Women's Missionary Society.

All women of the church and interested friends are cordially invited to share in this program, which will open with a prelude, "My Heart Ever Faithful" by Bach, played by Dorothy Engstrom, organist, and Geraldine Peterson, pianist.

After the invocation by Pastor Edward K. Rogers, the group will sing the hymn, "Now Thank We All Our God", and will recite the 100th Psalm in unison. Mrs. Martha Lawson, secretary, will read a history of the society and Mrs. Alice Yeager, soprano, will sing "God Be Merciful".

After the address by Mrs. Thomas, a vocal trio, composed of Ruth Satterlund, Kathryn Gafner and Jeannette Cable, will sing "Prayer Perfect", and the offering will be received for the Patron and Protege Fund. Another hymn, "Lord, With Glowing Heart I'd Praise Thee", will be followed by presentation of three life memberships.

Pastor Rogers will voice the prayer, the Missionary Benediction will be given in unison and Mrs. Engstrom will play the organ postlude.

Originally known as the Young Women's Missionary Society, the group took the name of Margaret Zundel in 1939. Miss Zundel, now Mrs. George Gesler, was a missionary to India from the Pittsburgh Synod.

Officers of the group are: President, Mrs. Gilbert Peterson; vice president, Mary Jane Schueltz; secretary, Mrs. Martha Lawson; treasurer, Mrs. Charles W. Cable; statistical secretary, Hazel Kays.

Oldest Resident Of Corydon Has 91st Anniversary

Corydon, March 26 — Mrs. Blanche Kennedy, oldest resident of this community, chalks up another milestone along life's way on Monday, April 2, when she observes her 91st birthday anniversary.

Born in Pine Island, Minn., in the year 1860, the larger part of her life has been spent in Corydon, where her parents, the late Juliette Tome Wilcox and Marshall Wilcox, were early pioneer settlers.

This esteemed citizen has not only a long life, but a full and busy one. Much of her time is spent with reading, listening to radio news and taking up a favored pastime, that of knitting or crocheting.

For her advanced years, Mrs. Kennedy, enjoys good health and occasionally takes a short walk to visit friends.

For the past several weeks, she has been visiting in Sodas, N. Y., but will return to her local home soon. She has three children, a daughter, Miss Lucia Browne, Corydon; two sons, W. Porter Browne, Visalia, Calif., and Frank Browne, Vincent, Ala.

'Americans Lousy Wives?'
This Is the Very Last Straw

"AMERICAN Women Are Lousy Wives" screams the current issue of Pageant magazine. You have to look inside to find out on whose authority that broad and stupid statement is based.

And then you discover that the article with the insulting title was written by the author of "Latinas Are Lousy Lovers." That's the high authority for the blanket condemnation of American wives.

With this article it seems American magazines might well call a halt to their attacks on the American woman. Nobody is going to be able to think up a more insulting title than that. No one is going to be able to make a more sweeping accusation.

For that takes in every wife. There are no qualifications. If she is an American woman, she is a lousy wife.

A NEW APPROACH

WHY should any magazine try to out-do that attack? Maybe—just maybe—it will shock the editors of other magazines into seeing just how absurdly far this concentrated attack on the American woman has been carried.

And maybe, since they can't hope to say anything worse about American women than that they are lousy wives, they'll try a new approach.

Maybe they'll wake up to the fact that American women are struggling with their problems like all other human beings in the world today. That the great majority of them are trying to do the best they know how. That many of them are succeeding admirably. But that they need constructive help and encouragement—not ridicule and wholesale condemnation.

If so, we might get more good articles for and about American women in our national magazines, instead of all the name-calling that has been going on during the past ten years.

RENT CONTROL NEWS RELEASE

Office of The Housing Expediter, Area Rent Office, 707 Commerce Building, Erie, Penn'a

Question: Are the members of the Rent Advisory Board appointed or elected by the Rent Director?

Answer: No! members of any Rent Advisory Board are appointed by Tighe Woods, Housing Expediter, upon the recommendation of the Governor of the particular state. Recommendations submitted by a Governor are always accepted by Tighe Woods, Housing Expediter, unless there is evidence that the proposed member has been in violation of the Rent Regulation or his appointment would upset the proper balance of representation of one landlord representative, one tenant representative, and three public interest members. Every effort is made to maintain this "balance" or ration of representation on the Rent Advisory Board for the Defense-Rental Area involved.

Question: I am considering the purchase of a property that has three rental units. What can I do to make sure that I will not be in violation of the law if I purchase the unit?

Answer: First of all, check with the Rent Office to make certain that the rents represented as the rents are the legal rents as recorded in the Rent Office. Then, if you purchase the property, file Change of Ownership form with the Rent Office. Finally make no change in rent or services without serving proper order from the Rent Office or filing necessary report form of decreased services.

Question: I am a tenant in an apartment building which was remodeled into four apartments in 1944. At the time I moved in in 1944 after the remodeling, the apartment was naturally in excellent condition. Now the apartment is badly in need of paint and paper. Nothing having been done since 1944. The rent originally approved for the apartment was high and was further increased in 1948 by 15% by means of a long term lease filed with the Rent Office. What can I do?

Answer: Assuming that painting and decorating is the obligation of your landlord, you should be able to submit evidence to the Rent Office that you have requested him to do the necessary work and file such evidence with the Rent Office together with Form

D-108 or Form D-10. The Rent Office will then take action to either get the landlord to do the necessary work or to reduce the maximum legal rent.

Question: I am becoming the new owner of a two-story building on April 1. The second floor tenant is moving out at the same time. Will the unit be out from under rent control by reason of the fact that there will be a new landlord and a new tenant?

Answer: The unit remains under rent control no matter who is the landlord or the tenant. A change in landlord or tenant does not have any effect upon the status of the unit. No rent above the rent registered at the Rent Office may be collected.

MENU SUGGESTIONS

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

THIS combination will please both the family appetite and the food budget.

Baked Ham Rounds

(Serves 4 to 6)

One smoked boneless shoulder butt (2 to 2½ pounds), peanut butter, milk.

Cut butt into crosswise slices ¼ to ¾-inch thick. Cover with boiling water and let stand until water is cold. Pour off water, then broil in broiler oven, which has been preheated for 10 minutes, until golden brown on both sides. Then spread each slice with peanut butter—allowing about 1 tablespoon to each large slice. Arrange in baking pan, side by side, and add enough milk to almost cover the slices. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for about 2 hours. As milk evaporates, add more—enough to keep sides of ham slices covered. When ham is done, cut around slices, being careful not to disturb the browned surface, and arrange on a hot platter.

Serve with baked sweet potatoes and a large bowl of mixed greens tossed with French dressing.

To eat well for less, waste nothing through careless cooking. Here are three suggestions for no waste in the kitchen.

1. For tender, crispy, good-to-eat potato skins, rub potatoes with a little fat before baking. Important nutrients lie just under the "jackets," so why not eat the skins. To make potatoes mealy, cut a crosswise slit in top when removing from oven and press potato gently to open slit and let steam escape.

2. For good results in cooking, measure level and use standard measuring cups and a set of measuring spoons.

3. If in a small family, bread tends to dry out or mold in the breadbox before it is all used up, store it, wrapped in the refrigerator where it will keep fresh for days.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Stewed rhubarb, shredded wheat, raisin toast, butter or fortified margarine, coffee, milk.

repeal and retention of Oleo restrictions.

Leading the fight for repeal of the colored oleo ban are the Pennsylvania Women's Committee for Yellow Margarine and the Pennsylvania Food Trade Committee on Margarine Distribution.

On the other side, opponents of yellow margarine are the Pennsylvania State Grange, the Dairy-men's League and the State Agriculture Department.

In addition to banning the sale of yellow margarine, present law also requires registration of all oleo dealers at $2 a year and stipulates they make regular reports of their sales to the state.

Attorney General Says No Legal Way

1925. McGrath's show of anger came when he said some newspapers were "trying to make it appear" the justice department had means to deport Costello.

McGrath opposed suggested creation of a federal crime commission, saying it might lead to creation of a national police force.

Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn) of the investigating committee has proposed establishment of a national crime commission to take over the committee's work which is scheduled to be wound up March 31, unless the senate votes to continue it.

The senators, after weeks of digging into the crime situation, called McGrath and Hoover before them for suggestions on what congress should do about it. They also called Wayne Coy, chairman of the federal communications commission, as a witness.

Starting what will be the committee's last week of hearings unless its life is extended, today's session was expected to run into the night with testimony from Abner (Longie) Zwillman and possibly other witnesses.

In the committee's sensational New York City hearings last week Zwillman was mentioned in connection with Murder, Inc., a mob that operated in Brooklyn about a decade ago and was blamed for more than a score of killings. Zwillman has said the testimony was ridiculous.

South Penn's 1950 Earnings Reported

Bradford, March 26—(P)—Pennsylvania's biggest buyer of crude oil reported a net income today of $7,607,262 in 1950 and a favorable future outlook.

South Penn Oil Company and its subsidiaries reported profits compare to $6,649,288 net income in 1949.

The earnings are equivalent to $4.30 a share, compared to $3.80 a share in 1949. Consolidated net sales in 1950 totalled $54,819,594, compared to $47,585,908 in 1949.

President George J. Hanks told shareholders that barring imposition of unfair or unjust controls and tax provisions, the outlook for the Pennsylvania grade crude oil industry continues to be favorable.

But Hanks does not expect Pennsylvania—birthplace of the oil industry—to equal last year's production in 1951.

Drilling and development in the past 24 months, Hanks said, have not been sufficient to maintain the current rate of production.

He added: "Apparently steel supplies will not be available for as active development programs as the current demand justifies."

They also admitted taking rolls of coins to an estimated value of $25 from a car of the owner of a string of vending machines when they found the car parked about town at various times; entering the high school where they took ice cream from the cafeteria; and the theft of two cartons of 22 shells from a local freight truck. The shells, 1000 rounds, were valued at about $16.

THE MARKETS

New York, March 26—(P)—The stock market returned to a narrow range of price changes today, with gains and losses well divided.

Despite an early rush of trading as week-end orders were cleared, stock prices showed no inclination to resume the precipitate decline of Saturday's session. The rally, among the prime target of that selling, showed appreciable signs of steadiness today.

The pace of dealings slowed greatly after the initial activity. Traders apparently were holding to the cautious attitude that marked much of last week's movements, after the nervous sell-off that accompanied the talk of a peace bid in Korea. Domestic uncertainties remained unchanged.

U. S. Government obligations were virtually unchanged as the treasury's offer to exchange its new non-marketable 2 1/2's for two existing issues of 2 1/2's became effective.

Farmers Plan to Plant Less Land During Summer

Washington—(P)—The threat of a smaller future supply of meat, dairy and poultry products hung over the nation today.

An Agriculture Department report showed that farmers plan to plant considerable less land to livestock feed crops than is needed to maintain current butchershop supplies of livestock food products.

Unless these plans are changed, feeders will have to cut down on production of beef cattle, dairymen on milk production, livestock men on hogs fattened and poultrymen on the number of eggs and chickens produced.

The department said fears of farm labor shortages at harvest time and a reluctance to plow up land which has been returned to grass was evidently keeping farmers from expanding crop production as much as Secretary of Agriculture Brannan says is needed under the defense program.

Faced with this prospect, department officials prepared to put on a vigorous campaign urging larger plantings than are now indicated. Officials said perhaps the department had not adequately publicized crop needs.

The unfavorable outlook was

Seed Box Good Place to Sow Most Flower Seeds

If seeds are sown thinly, they will reach garden size faster without transplanting.

Many home gardeners start most flower seeds in seed boxes, even after the weather has warmed up outdoors. Advantages of this practice are:

1. Soil well suited for germinating seeds can easily be supplied in the box.
2. Boxes can be placed near the source of water; moved to the shade when the sun is too hot; moved into the sun in cool weather.
3. All plants that develop can be set out in the garden each in the place desired, with no losses from thinning out.

These are real advantages, as those who have tried sowing seeds direct in the garden will understand. They apply especially to the larger flowers, which must be widely spaced, but not so well to flowers that grow in ribbon plantings, such as alyssum, and not at all to those that dislike transplanting such as poppies, portulaca and salpiglossis.

A disadvantage is that every time a plant is lifted and moved to a new location it experiences a shock and set-back. This can be overcome by starting your seed boxes early in a cold frame, hotbed, or in the house; and also by sowing the seed so far apart, that they can be moved from the box direct to places in the garden, thus experiencing transplanting shock only once.

To grow the largest plants you can in the shortest time, sowing in a seed box should be made with the seeds thinly spaced, so plants will not be crowded when they come up.

It should be sufficient to sow twice as many seeds as you have room for, to allow for failures from accidents, or other causes. If all seeds grow, some plants may have to be taken out, but as many as possible should be grown without check to garden size.

Garden size may mean anything from the second pair of leaves up, depending on how late you sow. The younger a plant is when moved outdoors, the quicker it will recover and resume growth. Plants may be moved to the garden as soon as the weather permits, if they have made true leaves. They should not be started under protection so early that they outgrow their indoors quarters when it is still too cold to move outdoors, as this may seriously check their growth.

If you take as a guide the date in your locality after which the garden is usually safe from killing frosts, then you may start seed four weeks before that date in a cold frame or in the house; six weeks before in a hot-bed and eight weeks or more in a greenhouse, and be reasonably sure that, provided you grow your plants in containers which have plenty of soil, you can grow them without check until safe to move them to the garden.

Ten School Teams Still in the Race For Three Crowns

Harrisburg, March 26—(P)—Schoolboy basketball bows out this week with 10 schools still eligible for the FIAA's three state championships.

Allentown, Farrell, Swoyersville and Pittsburgh Westinghouse still are eligible in Class A while Avalon, Kutztown, McAdoo and Mercer remain in Class B. Mt. Joy of Lancaster county will meet Fredonia of Mercer county tomorrow night at Lebanon for the First Class C state championship.

Allentown's district 11 champions meet Swoyersville of district 2 Wednesday night at Hershey for the Eastern Class A title while Farrell of District 7 battles Westinghouse, Pittsburgh city champion, at Sharon High School. The two survivors clash Saturday night at the Penn. Palestra in Philadelphia.

Kutztown's defending Class B state champions meet McAdoo, winner of the first Class C title in 1945, in the eastern finals at Allentown's Rockne Hall tomorrow night. At the same time the unbeaten Mercer mustangs oppose Avalon's panthers, WPIAL winners, at Farrell.

The Class B State championship game is scheduled for the Pitt Pavilion in Pittsburgh on Friday night.

Hornell Outfielder Rated Top Slugger

Columbus, Ohio, March 26—(P)—Oscar Sierra, outfielder of the Hornell, N. Y., team of the Class D Pony League, has officially been named last season's leading batter of minor league baseball.

Officials of the national association of professional baseball leagues (the minors) had to do some extra figuring before releasing the final figures yesterday.

Sierra's average was .421282, with 151 hits in 358 times at bat in 93 games. Right on his heels was Russell Mincey, manager-outfielder of Marion, N. C., club in the western Carolina league. Mincey made 161 hits in 382 times at bat in 110 games for a .421178 average.

Sierra will be awarded the Hillerich and Bradys Silver bat for his championship.

Atlantic Floormen Battle Rockets In Y City League Tilt

After two postponements, Smith and Lawton Atlantic and the Rockets meet tonight in the final game of the regular second-half schedule of the Y City League. Game time for the main attraction is 8 o'clock, while a preliminary is slated for 7 o'clock between two teams from last season's high school varsity and reserve squads.

If the Atlantic team should win tonight, a two-way tie for first place would result between them and the Style Shop, each with a 9-1 record. The date of a playoff in such a case has not been set by league officials.

Outfielder, Catcher Signed by Falcons

The outfield and catching departments of the Jamestown Falcons were increased with the addition of two more rookies to the Flock's roster. Outfielder Richard Clarke, 5 feet 10 inches, 165 pounder who bats left handed and throws right handed was signed to a 1951 contract. This is Clark's first year in the pro ranks. The 18 year old graduate of Loyola High in Baltimore can also fill in at 1st base.

Catcher Robert Maurer is the other rookie hales from Detroit, where he graduated from Cooley High. Maurer is 5 feet 11 inches tall, and weighs 184. He is right handed all around. Maurer played on his high school team and in 1950 performed for the Police Post American Junior Legion team.

The Falcons have also received the signed 1951 contracts of the following players: Bob Newell a 1st baseman who hit .251 for Thomasville, Ga., last season; Austin E. McCluskey a pitcher who spent last season with 3 clubs, Jamestown, Richmond, Ind. and Newport, Ky., in the Mountain States League; Pitcher Young Hiram Thompson, a southpaw hurler from Georgia Tech.; Cliff Breaux, a 6 feet, 2 inch, 190 pound outfielder from New Orleans, batted .245 and .246 in 1949 and 1950 with Thomasville.

The Falcons now have 24 signees for 1951. Fourteen of the rookies report to Manager Tony Lupien on April 1st at Southern Pines.

There are 6,485,000 farm homes in the United States and 39,300,000 non-farm dwellings, according to the 1950 census.

Well in Lycoming County May Be the Deepest in State

Harrisburg—(P)—A test well which may end up being Pennsylvania's deepest in history is being drilled on a farm in Lycoming county.

The well is going down at Oval, seven miles south of Jersey Shore. It is situated in the base of a deep cavity in the earth. For that reason it has a head start on its bid for a record depth.

So far drillers—hoping to strike natural gas—have reached a depth of 4,290 feet. The record in Pennsylvania is 10,312, reached by drillers in Fayette county two years ago. That well was dug by the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and is yielding natural gas.

The well at Oval is the latest attempt to search for an extension of the Ledy township gas field some 40 miles west in Clinton county. It is being drilled by the California company, a subsidiary of California Standard Oil Company.

State Geologist S. H. Cathcart said because the well is going down in a deep cavity it is starting in a lower strata level than any other well in the state.

Cathcart explained:

"This well was started at a point about 10,000 or 12,000 feet lower than wells could be started in such areas as the bituminous regions of western Pennsylvania."

And Cathcart isn't even sure what the new well will find. There is no real evidence of either oil or natural gas in the immediate area. "Since this is getting down to a point where we have never explored in Pennsylvania before," Cathcart said, "it is hard to say what will be found."

A spokesman for the California Company said drillers are not attempting to set a new record. They'll stop when and if they reach Natural gas. But they expect to go through limestone to a possible depth of 9,000 feet or more in search of the fuel.

Easter Egg Hunt At Youngsville Is A Great Success

has many facets of interest to me."

This year's board will be convened by Mr. Luce in the fall to select a recipient from candidates nominated by members of the Society of Industrial Realtors, the one national organization of specialists in industrial property transactions.

The industrialist singled out for special honor will be presented with the 1951 Industrial Award by Mr. Luce during the Society's annual convention which will be held in Cincinnati, November 11 to 16. The award trophy is a green bronze statuette symbolizing industrial development that was created by Prix de Rome sculptor Alvin Meyer of Chicago.

David W. Harper and James C. Harper of the firm of Harper & Russell Company are members of the Society of Industrial Realtors with active representatives in Warren, Erie, Meadville, Corry, and North East.

Despite a full-scale recurrence of winter weather, upwards of 200 youngsters took part in the Easter egg hunt provided by Halgren-Wilcox Post, American Legion, of Youngsville on Saturday afternoon at Island Park.

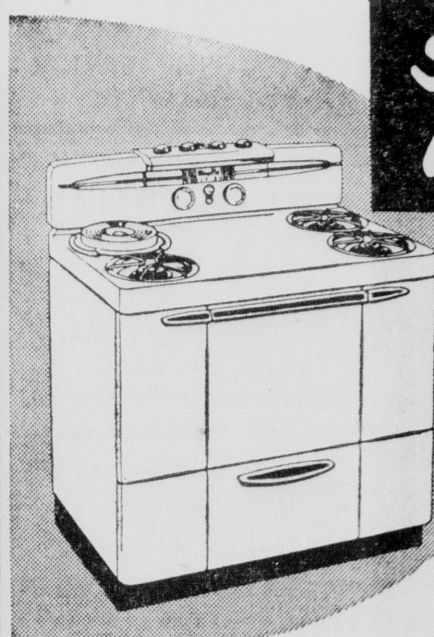

The members of the Legion distributed 30 dozen eggs which were provided by Youngsville professional and business people; with 49 prize eggs provided by various merchants of the town and immediate area.

Lucky youngsters who received the prize eggs include the following which were divided into two age groups:
Rebecca Wheeler, Mike Natale, Steve Rensma, Robert Wroblewski, John McCanna, Jackie Ruhlman, Paul Hopkins, Harry Wertz, Dennis Knapp, William Range, Barbara Jackson, Merritt Fedoy, Paul Ransom, Kay Samuelson, Donald Hopkins, Dennis Cedrone, Dennis Clark, Mary Ann Cedrone,
